V.1

THE want of a comprehensive Dictionary of our rich and important anonymous and pseudonymous Literature has long been a reproach to English Bibliography. The admirable works of this class, of which France, Germany, Italy, Russia, Sweden, and even Belgium, are able to boast, have been continually held up as examples, and pointed to as models of what should be done for English Literature. An eminent French bibliographer, M. Philarète Chasles, in tracing out, in the Révue des deux Mondes, an exhaustive plan for English Literature 'similar to that which other civilised nations already possess,' begins his article thus:—'In the whole history of literature there is not a more fantastical group of whimsicalities than that of the English pseudonyms which abound between 1688 and 1800; nor is there any subject so new and unexplored, and yet so little explained. During that time some hundreds of writers, among whom I shall only take certain notabilities, deliberately renounced the lustre of their own names, and sacrificed their vanity to their interest or passion. If they concealed their names and disguised their hand, it was to carry out their work better. One wishes to destroy an ancient reputation which is in his way; another wants to popularise sentiments which he considers useful; others to glorify the national vanity; the greater part to make their fortunes. There are the innocent and honest, as Defoe; the violent and imprudent, like Chatterton; the foolish like Ireland; the unskilful and the calumniators, like Landor; and lastly, the expert, like the Scotchman Macpherson, who deceived an entire generation of Europe and America.'*

In our own literary journals appeared continual appeals for the supply of this great want,—one daily felt by all librarians, book collectors, and literary men, until, specially incited by a correspondence on the subject in Notes and Queries, the late learned Keeper of the Advocates' Library at Edinburgh, Mr Halkett, undertook the important task, and wrote to that periodical in 1856 as follows:—'The frequent communications that have appeared on the subject of a Dictionary of anonymous English writers similar to the Dictionnaire des Ouvrages anonymes et pseudonymes of Barbier, lead me to believe that such a work would be regarded as a valuable contribution to the bibliographical literature of the country. I have myself felt the want of it greatly, and for my own purposes have long been in the habit of noting down every piece of information that came in my way. During the last three or four years I have been engaged in preparing a new catalogue of the Advocates' Library, and, in the course of the inquiries which it has been my duty to make, I have largely increased the stock of materials which I had previously collected. In these circumstances, should no one better qualified than myself undertake the task, I feel strongly disposed to continue the researches in which I have been engaged, and to arrange the results with a view to publication.*

The result of further correspondence confirmed Mr Halkett in the resolution to prosecute his researches, and various eminent bibliographers kindly offered their co-operation and assistance. Prominent among these may be mentioned Mr Henry B. Wheatley, F.S.A., who abandoned his own intention of preparing a work of the kind; and confided to Mr Halkett's care a large mass of materials, the result of several years' labour.

Mr Halkett's collections represent the results of nearly twenty years' diligent, experienced, and well-aided research, and since his death in 1871, the Rev. John Laing, Librarian of the New College, Edinburgh, one of the most capable, persevering, and accurate of bibliographers, continued the research till his death in 1880.

It is necessary to add a few words with regard to the plan of the work. The arrangement followed is strictly alphabetical, taking the first word of the title, exclusive of the definite and indefinite articles and the prepositions of and on. The author's name is printed in small capitals, and the authority in italics, both within brackets. In many instances, a work is ascribed by various authorities to two, three, and occasionally even four authors, in such cases the editors have given the name which they considered best supported by evidence, and the others have been placed below, with their authorities attached.

The asterisk denotes that a copy of the work has been critically examined by Mr Halkett or Mr Laing, and that it is strictly anonymous,—i. e. the author's real name does not appear on the title page, or anywhere throughout the work.

* Notes and Queries, Second Series, vol. i., p. 129.

As accounting for the delay, it may be mentioned that in revising the MSS. for the press there were found a number of entries containing only an extract from the title, the author's name, and a reference to an authority. By verifying these references such titles have been completed, and when cases of doubtful spelling or punctuation occurred, the MS. has been compared with the printed title when possible. Occasionally, however, access to the book could not be obtained, in which case no alteration has been made in the editors' MSS., both gentlemen being remarkable for their minute accuracy.

It only remains to the Publisher to record his regret that Mr Halkett and Mr Laing should have been cut off before their great work had seen the light, and also to record special thanks to the heads of the public libraries and numerous bibliographers for the valuable assistance which they so readily granted to the compilers and since their death.

ACCOVNT (an) given to the Parliament by the ministers sent by them to Oxford. In which you have the most remarkable passages which have fallen out in the six moneths service there, divers questions concerning the covenant of grace, justification, &c., are briefly stated. Particularly, there is presented two conferences, in which the ministers together with the truth, have suffered by reproaches and falshoods in print and otherwise. The chief points insisted on in those conferences are, 1. Whether private men might lawfully preach. 2. Whether the ministers of the Church of England were Antichristian. Both which questions were disputed, objections answered, and the truth confirmed.
3. And lastly, divers of M. Erbury's dangerous errors which he broached and maintained, are recited and refuted. [By Francis CHEYNELL.]

ADDRESS (an) to the Protestant interest in Scotland. Being an humble and seasonable warning, wherein is clearly demonstrated, the inexpediency and danger of repealing our penal laws against Popery, or allowing that dangerous and idolatrous religion to be openly profest within this realm. More particularly shewing, I. That Popery is a false and unscriptural religion. II. That it is opposite to the civil constitution and liberty of this kingdom. III. That it is a religion, which has hitherto been propagated and nourished only by blood. IV. That the penal laws against it, in Scotland, were not founded in persecution, but in self-defence. V. That a repeal of the above laws would appear to infer, in so far, a breach of the articles of the Union. VI. A comparative view of the Act of Parl. of the 11th and 12th of King William against Popery; and the Act of last session in favour of the professors of that superstition in England. VII. Address concluded. With a postscript, giving a short account of the Popish Bill, lately passed in Ireland: and an appendix, containing a copy of the above two acts. The following note in the hand-writing of Dyce, occurs in vol. I. of the above:—

“This work was written by Sarah Fielding, sister of the great novelist.

“The great James Harris was no disdainer of trifles. He wrote the two comical dialogues at the end of ‘David Simple,’ an old novel composed by Dr Collins’ sister, who was dead before I knew him, in conjunction with Sally Fielding, whose brother was author of ‘Tom Jones,’ not yet obsolete. Mrs Piozzi’s Autobiography, &c., vol. ii., p. 29, sec. ed. See the above mentioned “Dialogues,” in vol. iv., pp. 181-193. Ἄγγελογραφία

Πνεύματα λειτουργικά,

ΠΙΝΕΥΜΑΤΟΛΟΓΙΑ:

Or, a discourse of angels: their nature and office, or ministry. Wherein is shewed what excellent creatures they are, and that they are the prime instruments of God's providence, and are employ'd about kingdoms, and churches, and single persons, and that under Jesus Christ, who is the head of angels as well as men, and by whose procurement angels are ministring spirits for sinful men. Also something touching devils and apparitions, and impulses. With a practical improvement of the particulars handled, and of the whole doctrine of angels, especially for the promoting of an angelical life. Here such speculations as some would seem wise in, above what is written, are declined: and such things only are handled as the holy Scriptures give us light in, and have been taught by sober divines. ALEXANDER'S expedition down the Hydaspes and the Indus, to the Indian Ocean. [A poem, by Thomas

BEDDOES, M.D.] (Privately printed.) (Plate.)

London : 1792. Quarto. [W., Martin's Cat.]

This work owes its origin to a conversation, which took place at the table of the late Mr William Reynolds, in which some men of taste contended that Dr Darwin's poetical effusions were inimitable. Dr Beddoes held a contrary opinion, and to try the point, produced to the same party, a short time after, a manuscript of the present piece as from his friend Darwin ; and sent it to him, previous to publication. The advocates for Darwin's style were deceived and Beddoes triumphed : Mr Reynolds had it printed at his own expense. It was printed at Madeley ; the types were set by a woman, and the engravings made on wood by the then clerk of the parish. See Parr's Catalogue.

ANSWER (an) by letter to a worthy gentleman who desired of a divine some reasons by which it might appear how inconsistent Presbyteriall government is with monarchy. In which, the platforme of that government is briefly delineated, with the tenents and suitable practises thereof. And with-all it is demonstrated, that it is inconsistent with any govt. whatsoever; is full of faction, sedition and treason; an enemy to all peace, domesticall, neighbourly, brotherly, &c. against soveraigne authority, authority of all Iudges and Iudicatories, entrenching upon all so farre, as there can be no liberty of person, trade, commerce or propriety, but at their pleasure who bear sway therein. [By John MAXWELL, Bishop of Ross.]

Printed, anno. 1646. Quarto. Pp. 78.*

“The author of this tract was JOHN MAXWELL, Bishop of Ross. From the acct. given of it by Robt. Baillie, in his Vindication of the Ch. of Scot. &c. 1646, it appears that this letter was printed at Oxfd., and that after a very few copies had been given to the author's friends, the whole impression was burnt in a fire which destroyed the Printing Office, and which Baillie considered to be a Judgment of God for such a prophane misrepresentation of Presbytery. Maxwell's well-known work, The burden of Issachar, 1646, is in fact a republication of this Letter with some alterations.”—MS. note in the hand-writing of Dr David Laing.

ANSWER (an) to a paper which came from the Papists lately out of Holland. Who goeth about to vindicate the pope, Jesuits, and Papists, who since the dayes of the apostles have got up, which according to the Scriptures of Christ and the apostles they are not; neither by the words of Christ and the apostles, can the pope, Papists, or any other justifie their practices, as in this book you may read, looking upon Christ, and upon the apostles practice, and then look upon the pope, Jesuits, and Papists' practices, concerning their beads, and concerning their crosses; concerning their images and crucifixes, and their nunneries, and houses, in keeping men and women asunder one from another; and concerning of marriages, and widows. And concerning putting men to death about religion; and concerning the priesthood which is changed, which did put men to death for blasphemy; and how Christ is come to save mens lives, and to destroy the devil, the ground of blasphemy. And concerning inquisition, fire and faggot; their racking men for religion, all these things have been set up by the apostates since the dayes of the apostles. And if any Papist in England, or Jesuit, Pope or Cardinal elsewhere, will go forth three or four weeks with a Quaker, with bread and water, and have no more of that then the Quaker hath; for you Papists have said that the Quakers deny fasting; so if you dare try this matter, then some of your side shall watch the Quaker, and some of the Quakers side shall watch you, and so we shall try if your bellies be not your god. ANSWER (an) to Thomas Tillams book called, The seventh-day-sabbath: wherein it is shewed how that Christians sabbath is Christ, who is the Lord of the day, who was before any day was made, and is the rest for man-servants, and maid-servants, and strangers, Jewes and

- Gentiles that believe in him, who gives rest unto the creation. And how the Jews sabbath was a day given to them since the fall, a signe and a shadow, which sabbath was the Lords which he rested on from his work, which day the Jews was to rest on from their work, man-servants, and maid-servants, and strangers, ox, and asse, and all that was within their gates: and this sabbath was a shadow, and sign of rest to them all, which substance of the sign of the shadow is Christ the body, which who be in Christ, and lieves in him are entred into their rest, and have ceased from their own works, as God did from his; so Christ is the rest for Jew and Gentile, man-servant, and maid-servant that believes in him, who takes off the oppression, and gives rest to the ox and asse, and all things that be the Lords, and this rest is known by them that be within the gates of salvation, and then he comes to be seen who ends all shadows and signs who is the substance (Christ) and then the shadow flies away, and many can walk without them, who be in Christ glorified with the Father before the world began, and sees the glory of God with open face. Moreover it is here shewn how they that live in shadows and signs and wil-worship, and worshipping of angels (to the satisfying of the flesh intruding into those things which they never saw) neglects the body which is Christ (unto whom all the angels must bow.) And they that live in Christ, live in the good things, which the shadows and signes shadowed forth. Read this book over, and you may find things in it which you have not read, known, nor understood. APOLOGY (an) for the Church of Scotland, against the accusations of prelatists and jacobites, and particularly the reflections of J. S. late incumbent at Forfar. Wherein the said church, is fairly vindicated from the unjust charge of schism; and the same justly fastned upon her accusers. As also, the late proceedings of the presbyteries, against the disloyal and rebellious clergy, are justified; and the wickedness of the rebellion, and clemency of the government set forth. And likewise, the divine institution of presbyterial government and ordination, is clearly evinced from scripture: and the usual pretext, for the apostolical foundation of prelacy, are fully overthrown. [By John WILLISON.]

Edinburgh, 1719.* [Adv. Lib.]

APOLOGY (an) for the clergy of Scotland, chiefly oppos'd to the censures calumnies, and accusations of a late presbyterian vindicator, in a letter to a friend. Wherein his vanity, partiality and sophistry are modestly reprov'd, and the legal establishment of episcopacy in that kingdom, from the beginning of the reformation, is made evident from history and the records of parliament. Together with a postscript, relating to a scandalous pamphlet [by G. Ridpath] intituled, An answer to the Scotch presbyterian eloquence. [By Alexander MONRO, D.D.]

London: 1693. Quarto.* [Adv. Lib.]

APOLOGY (an) for the clergy; with a view to expose the groundless assertions of [Romaine] a late commentator on the cviiith Psalm; and to undeceive the admirers of certain popular declaimers, by shewing the dangerous consequences of their manner of preaching. [By John DOUGLAS, D.D.]

1775. Octavo. [Gent. Mag., lxxvii. i. 475. Mon. Rev., xii. 399.]

London, MDCXCI. Quarto.* [Bodl.]

APOLOGY (an) for the Protestants of France, in reference to the persecutions they are under at this day; in six letters: the first, treats of the privileges they have by the Edict of Nantes. The second, gives an account of some part of the injuries and outrages they do them, whereby to force them to change their religion. The third, proves that their religion inspires no other principle into them, but an unmoveable loyalty to their prince. The fourth, justifies their innocence against the unjust charge of Monsieur Maimbourg. The fifth, defends them in relation to those troubles that fell out in Lewis XIII. reign, and the affair of Rochel. The last, shews that the Papists, by the principles of their religion, are guilty of all the crimes, they wrongfully lay to the Protestants, in reference to kings. [By Roger L'ESTRANGE.]

London. 1683. Quarto.*

APOLOGY (an) for the pulpits: being in answer to a late book [by J. Gother], intituled, Good advice to the pulpits. Together with an appendix, containing a defence of Dr. Tenison's sermon about alms; in a letter [from Tenison] to the author of this Apology. [By John WILLIAMS, D.D.]

- ATHENIAN Letters: or the epistolary correspondence of an agent of the King of Persia, residing at Athens during the Peloponnesian war: containing the history of the times, in dispatches to the ministers of State at the Persian Court besides Letters on various subjects between him and his friends. [Preface by the Hon. Charles Yorke.] Privately printed. In four volumes. London: 1741-3. Octavo. [W.]
- The following is a list of the authors and the initials with which they signed their Letters.
P. Hon. Philip Yorke, Earl of Hardwicke.
C. Hon. Charles Yorke. R. Rev. George Henry Rooke, D.D., Master of Christ's College, Cambridge. G. Dr John Green, Bishop of Lincoln. W. Daniel Wray, for some time Deputy-Teller of the Exchequer.
H. Rev. Henry or John Heaton of Bennet

College. E. Dr Heberden. [One letter only on the Life, &c., of Hippocrates.] O. Henry Coventry, author of the Letters of Philemon to Hydaspes. L. Rev. John Lawry, Prebendary of Rochester. T. Mrs Catherine Talbot. B. Rev. Dr Thomas Birch. S. Rev. Dr Samuel Salter, Master of Charter House.

"Only twelve [copies] of this edition of 1741 were printed for presents to a few friends, under great injunctions of secrecy; this rare edition of 1741 contains some letters not to be found in the subsequent editions." From Mr Grenville's note to his copy in the British Museum. In the Birch Collection of Manuscripts at the British Museum, are the original MS. of some few of the Letters, and a correspondence of the Yorkes and Dr Birch on the subject, from which it appears that Dr Birch was the editor of the Letters, or at least that he superintended the passing of them or part of them through the press, although Nichols in his Literary Illustrations, vol. I. p. 33, states that Charles Yorke may be considered as the original editor.

ATHENIAN (the) oracle. Being an entire collection of all the valuable questions and answers in the old Athenian Mercuries. Intermix'd with many cases in divinity, history, philosophy, mathematics, love, poetry; never before publish'd. To which is added, an alphabetical table for the speedy finding of any questions. By a member of the Athenian Society. [John DUNTON.] In four volumes. Third edition.

London: M.DCC.XXVIII. Octavo. To vol. IV. is prefix'd The history of the Athenian Society [by Gildon], and an essay upon learning.

ATHENIAN (the) Society unvail'd: or, their ignorance and envious abusing of the Quakers detected and reprehended. [By Joseph WYETH.] Signed a "Quaker."

London: 1692. Folio. 1 sh. [Smith's Cat. of Friends' books, i. 45; ii. 965.]

ATHENIAN sport: or, two thousand paradoxes merrily argued, to amuse and divert the age: as A paradox in praise of a paradox. Corporeal affections remain after separation. The eye beholds as much when it looks on a shilling, as when it speculates the whole heaven. Inconstancy is a most commendable virtue. Every man is corporally born twice. No man sees but he that is stark blind. The restor'd maidenhead, or a marry'd woman may be twice a virgin. Athenian, or intellectual, sport is the recreation of pre-existent spirits. 'Tis the pleasantest life to be always in danger. The same numerical voice of a preacher is not heard by any two of his auditors. What we call life, is natural death. Content is the greatest misery. He is the happiest man who has neither money nor friend. Fruition's nothing, or a paradox proving there's no pleasure in copulation. To imprison a debtor is to set him at liberty. Green come from the dead, or no man lives but he that is hang'd. The virgin-paradox, or a young lady may love and hate the same person at the same time. The loving shrew, or the kindest women are the most cruel. And so on, to the defence of 2000 paradoxes (or pleasant theses) which seem strange, and contrary to the common opinion. With improvements from the Honourable Mr. Boyle, Loak, Norris, Collier, Cowley, Dryden, Garth, Addison, and other illustrious wits. By a member of the Athenian Society. [John DUNTON.]

London, 1707. Octavo. Pp. xxxii. 544.* [Bodl.]

- ATTEMPT (an) to explain the words reason, substance, person, creeds, orthodoxy, Catholic Church, subscription, and Index Expurgatorius. To which are added, some reflections, miscellaneous observations, quotations, and queries, on the same subjects. By a Presbyter of the Church of England. [William ROBERTSON, D.D.] London: MDCCLXVI. Duodecimo. Pp. xii. 248.
To an edition published in 1767, the author adds a letter, with his name, addressed to the Bishop of Ferns. [Gent. Mag. N. and Q.]
- ATTEMPT (an) to prove, that every species of patronage is foreign to the nature of the church; and, that any modifications, which either have been, or ever can be proposed, are insufficient to regain, and secure her in the possession of the liberty, wherewith Christ hath made her free. In six dissertations. With an introduction, wherein the unhappy conditions, to which the Church of Scotland is reduced, by the present ecclesiastic management, is represented as the reason of the present undertaking: and a conclusion, wherein the only method left for reformation is proposed, and recommended to the friends of christian liberty. By a friend to the natural and religious rights of mankind. [William GRAHAM, Anti-burgher minister at Whitehaven.] Second edition.
Edinburgh: MDCCLXIX. Octavo. Pp. 160.*
The authorship of the above is acknowledged by Mr Graham in his pamphlet, "A candid vindication of the Secession Church," published at Newcastle in 1690. The first edition was published in 1768.
- ATTEMPT (an) to reconcile all differences between the present fellows and licentiates of the Royal College of Physicians in London: in which are laid down, the grievances complained of by the licentiates; a proposal to redress those grievances; with some reflections on the said proposal. [By Edward HODY.] London: [1753?] Octavo.*
- ATTEMPT (an) to shew that the knowledge of God has in all ages been derived from revelation or tradition, not from nature. [By James PATON, D.D.] Glasgow: 1773. Octavo. Pp. 131.
A learned and ingenious work, by some erroneously ascribed to Dr Findlay of Glasgow. [W., Lowndes, Bibliog. Man.]
- ATTEMPT (an) to shew the folly and danger of methodism; in a series of essays first published in the weekly paper called the Examiner, and now enlarged with a preface and additional notes. By the editor of the Examiner. [James Henry Leigh HUNT.] London: 1809. Octavo. [Watt, Bib. Brit. Brit. Crit., xxxviii. 646.]
- ATTEMPT (an) to shew the justice and expediency of substituting an income or property tax for the present taxes, or part of them; as affording the most equitable, the least injurious, and (under the modified procedure suggested therein,) the least obnoxious mode of taxation: also the most fair, advantageous, and effectual plans for reducing the national debt. [By Benjamin SAYER.]

ATTEMPT (an) towards the character of the royal martyr King Charles I. from authentic vouchers. Address'd to the author of An essay towards the character of Her late Majesty Caroline, Queen Consort of Great Britain, &c. With an appendix. Containing I. A particular relation of the solemnity of King Charles I. His baptism, from the Herald's-Office in Edinburgh. In disproof of a false (but too common) assertion, that he was never episcopally baptized. II. An order of the regicides for the King's funeral. Compared with III. The pompous one of Oliver Cromwell, from Mercurius Politicus. IV. A proclamation for calling in, and suppressing Mr. John Milton's two villanous invectives against the royal martyr, with Mr. John Goodwin's Defence of the King's murder, ordering them to be burnt by the hands of the common hangman. By which it plainly appears, that had a publick monument been erected to Milton's memory, in King Charles II.'s reign, it would have been look'd upon as a mark of disaffection to the kingly government. [By Zachary GREY.]

London: MDCCXXXVIII. Octavo. Pp. 70. b. t.* [Bodl.]

CATECHETICAL instruction : humbly proposed by way of an appendix to the Church catechism. Chiefly designed for such young persons, as having been regularly baptized and confirmed, have also renewed their engagements, and strengthened their graces, by their participation of the great Christian sacrifice, at God's holy altar. But which may be useful also to older people, namely, in strengthening those who are wandering, and in raising up such as have fallen from the communion of the church. May God accompany it with his blessing for that good end. [By William Abernethy DRUMMOND, D.D.]

London, M.DCC.LXVII. Duodecimo.* An edition was published at London in 1759.

CAUSA episcopatus hierarchici lucifuga: or, a confutation of J. S [Sage]'s Vindication of the (pretended) principles of the Cyprianic age; exposing his fruitless attempts upon presbyterian government therein, and his alike fruitless pleadings for the hierarchie upon the same ground, dissolving also the chief sinews, and overturning the scope of that voluminous pamphlet; in exhibiting a view of the Churches defection in the third age, and the considerable advances of the mystery of iniquity therein, and in special with respect to church-government; discovering also his unsuccessful pleading, whether from the practice of that age, in point of episcopacy, simply considered, or the reception thereof under the notion of a divine institution; assigning signal differences betwixt the Cyprianic bishop pleaded for by this pamphleter, and the truly apostolic bishop represented in scripture; his impeaching the doctrine of the reform'd churches, in the scope and series of his pleading, evidently made appear; as also, his declining the true state of this controversie: his several attacks upon the Rev. Mr. Rule, and the author [T. Forrester] of the Hierarchical bishops claim, repell'd; unsound and inconsistent principles in the whole detected; besides several other things tending to clear the truth in this debate, advanc'd. To which is annex'd an appendix containing a scripture assertion of presbyterian principles, both in point of government and worship. [By Thomas FORRESTER.]

London, MDCLXXXIX. Quarto.* [Bodl.]

CAVEAT (a) against Mr. Benjamin Bennet, a meer pretender to history and criticism; proving, from some of his late performances, how little qualify'd he is, to be either an historian, or critick. By a lover of history. [Zachary GREY, LL.D.]

London, 1724. Octavo.* [Bodl.]

CAVEAT (a) against popery: being a seasonable preservative against Romish delusions and Jacobitism, now industriously spread throughout the nation. Wherein is exhibited under three propositions, First, a large specimen of the principles and practices of popery, in regard to our church and nation, from the reformation down to the present; whereby is demonstrated the virulent spirit of that religion, and the incompatibleness of a popish prince with a protestant people. Secondly, the insolent and open attacks of Romish priests upon his Majesty's subjects, and the dangerous increase of the papal faction among us. Thirdly, the necessity of bringing these indefatigable adversaries of our religion and government under a due restraint. To which is added, a short view of the principal errors of the church of Rome, when, for what ends, and by what means, they were introduced into the church: with an application to the Roman-catholicks of England, shewing that they are obliged in duty and all reason to leave that corrupt communion. [By John HILDROP, D.D.]

London: MDCCXXXV. Octavo.* [Adv. Lib.]

CAVEAT (a) against the dissenters: or, the clemency of Presbyterians exemplified, in an avowed enmity to monarchy, Episcopacy, and liturgy: in encouraging a reformation by blood; and a denial of toleration to all sects and parties, when they themselves were uppermost. From the sermons and writings of the most eminent men amongst them, during the grand rebellion and usurpation. From which it appears, [upon supposition, that the dissenters still retain their old principles,] the unreasonableness of their applying for a repeal of the Corporation and Test Acts, at this, or any other time. With the thoughts of the late King William, upon that subject. By a sincere lover of our present constitution. [Zachary GREY, LL.D.]

London : M. DCC. XXXVI. Octavo. Pp. 54.* [Bodl.]

CAVEAT (a) against the new sect of Anabaptists lately sprung up at Exon. Shewing the novelty and schism, the absurdity and dangerous tendency of their principles and practices, who were concerned in the rebaptization of Mr Benjamin Read. In a letter to a friend. [By James PEIRCE.]

XΑΡΙΣ (ἡ) δωρεῖσα II. Tim. I. 9. That is, the Holy Spirit the author of immortality, or, immortality a peculiar grace of the gospel, no natural ingredient of the soul, proved from the Holy Scriptures, and Fathers against Mr. Clark's bold assertion of the soul's natural immortality, against Scripture, the doctrine of the Church in the purest and most primitive ages of it, and reason guided (as it ought to be) by the Word of God. Wherein the Holy Fathers, and most sacred Scriptures, are rescued from his plain misrepresentations, and it is solidly proved, that he hath not one sentence of the Fathers, or one text of Scripture on his side; being a vindication of Mr. Dodwell's Epistolary discourse from all the aspersions of the foresaid pretended answerer. With some animadversions on Mr Chishul and Dr Whitby. By a presbyter of the church of England. [Joseph PITTS.]

- XEIPEZOKH, the excellency or handy work of the royal hand. [By Dr. Thomas ALLEN.] In three volumes.
London: 1665. Quarto. Pp. vi. 37. 'The Epistle dedicatory' to James II. (then Duke of York) is signed 'T.A. M.D.'
In Wm. Beckett's "Enquiry in the antiquity and efficacy of touching for the king's evil" [8vo. 1722], at p. 58 is the following:—
"Four years after this, Dr. Thomas Allen, sometime of Caius College in Cambridge, afterward physician in ordinary to King Charles the Second, published a treatise of the cure of the evil by the touch, which he entitles, 'The excellency or handy-work of the royal hand,' dedicated to the Duke of York."

In the British Museum copy of this pamphlet is the following note:—

"By Dr. Harris;—This Dr. Harris was Burgess for S. Albans in the Parliament of 1661: His father old Harris, there chyrurgeon, bought up all the copies and burnt [them]."

It is not probable that it was written by Dr. Harris, as his name does not agree with the initials signed to the dedication, which Dr. Allen's does. [W.]

Londini in ædibus Richardi Tottelli anno 1580. Octavo. Fol. 176. 4. B. L.* [Bodl.]

DIALOGUE (a) arguing that arch-bishops, bishops, curates, neuters, are to be cut-off by the law of God; therefore all these, with their service, are to be cast-out by the law of the land. Notwithstanding, the world pleads for their own, why some bishops should be spared, the government maintained; the name had in honour still; but the word of God is cleare against all this, for the casting-of-all-forth. The great question is, which way of government now? for two wayes are contended for, the presbyteriall and independent: something is said to both these wayes: but we have a sure word for it, that these two wayes are but in shew two, and will assuredly meet in one. Neuters are shewen openly here, and the curse of God upon them. Presented to the Assembly of Divines. [By H. WOODWARD.]

Sarum : 1730. Octavo.*

The Bodleian copy, which belonged to Tho. Hearne, has the following note in his handwriting.—“’Tis nothing but an Extract from Webb, abating some abusive expressions of the thief, who sufficiently exposeth himself by endeavouring to detract from the reputation of those great men Olaus Wormius, and Dr. Walter Charleton. Tho I differ from Dr. Charleton, yet I think the Dr. hath supported his opinion very well, and deserved thanks rather than obloquy. At least it is very unbecoming, for such mean writers as the publisher of this extract, to attack such a worthy man as the Dr. certainly was, in so rude a manner.”

DISSERTATION (a) in which the defence of P. Sulla, ascribed to M. Tullius Cicero, is clearly proved to be spurious; after the manner of Mr. Markland: with some introductory remarks on other writings of the antients never before suspected. EDINBURGH (the) paradise regain'd, or the city set at liberty, to propagate and improve her trade and commerce. Being a curious dissertation thereon, and discovery of the disease that obstructs the growth and progress thereof. And an effectual remedy and cure therefor, by redressing and removing her grievances. The city standing on a hill, set on a plain. An inland city immediately commence a maritime one, so as to join, and communicate, with the most navigable river in all Britain. The city beautified and adorned, for the more commodious entertainment of our patriot nobility and gentry, and inviting them to frequent their own metropolis, as before the incorporate union. And all this done in a frugal, surprisingly cheap and far more easy way, than hitherto has been proposed, or probably ever will be, yea is done for nothing, in regard of the profit and gain of some thousands of pounds annually, that attends this method; as is clearly made appear in the following pages of this essay; and in some cases for less than nothing, in regard of the saving money, that otherways behoved necessarily to be expended. By a merchant-citizen, long acquainted with the city's accompt of profit and loss, both before and since the incorporate union. [Robert MEIN.]

ENGLISH (the) parliament represented in a vision. With an after-thought upon the speech deliver'd to his most Christian Majesty, by the deputies of the states of Britany, on the 29th. day of February last; and the number of votes and sermons the tories made at London for twenty seven years. To which is added at large, that memorable representation of the House of Commons to the Queen, in the year 17½; from whence Great Britain and the allies now date their late misfortunes, and France all her present power and grandeur. The answer of the States-general, with other remarks, are enter'd at the end of the articles of the said representation. All being worthy now of notice upon the meeting of the new parliament. Writ in two books. By the author of An inquiry into the mis-carriages of the four last years reign. [Charles POVEY.] London: 1715. Octavo.*

ENGLISH Presbyterian eloquence: or, dissenters sayings ancient and modern. Collected from the books and sermons of the Presbyterians, &c. from the reign of Queen Elizabeth to the present time: wherein it appears, that the Presbyterians have constantly attempted to subvert the fundamental articles of the Christian faith; to abolish the doctrine and discipline of the Church of England establish'd by law; to ruin the characters of the universities, the convocation and the episcopal clergy; to asperse the memory of his present majesty's royal progenitors; and have been profess'd enemies to truth, common sense, and good manners, from their first settlement in this kingdom. With remarks upon every chapter. [By Thomas LEWIS, M.A.]

London: MDCCXX. Octavo. Pp. 4 b. t. 143.* [Adv. Lib.]

ENGLISH Presbyterian eloquence, &c.

In a collection of remarkable flowers of rhetorick. Humbly inscribed to those two celebrated historiasters, Mr. Oldmixon, author of the History of the royal House of Stuart, &c. &c. &c. and Mr. Samuel Chandler, author of the late History of persecution. Cum notis variorum. By an admirer of monarchy and episcopacy. With an appendix, containing some paragraphs of a tract written by Dr. Lewis du Moulin, [a noted Independent, an history professor of Oxford during the usurpation] concerning the capacity of ministers to sit and vote in parliament. Worthy of observation at this time, when the dissenters are pleading so powerfully for (what they miscall) their natural rights. And a genuine receipt, for the (once) much applauded fanatical Diascordium, the most effectual remedy against an enthusiastical diarrhoea, (a distemper but too common in our days) and to prevent its turning to a dysentery. [By Zachary GREY, LL.D.]

- ESQUIRE Bickerstaff's most strange and wonderful predictions for the year, 1708. Wherein the month and day of the month are set down, when several most surprizing accidents shall certainly come to pass, as particularly that the present French king shall die on the 29th of July. The Pope to die on the 11th of September. The dauphin the French king's son to dye on the 7th of May. That Partridge the famous astrologer is to dye on the 29th of March. On the 23d of May a famous actor of the play-house will die a ridiculous death, suitable to his vocation. Upon the 26th of August, will arrive from Flanders such a welcome express of victory, that a thousand bonfires will be made in London for joy of the news, and in the same month a noble admiral will gain immortal honour, by obtaining a signal victory at sea. On the 6th of June the city of Paris will be burnt down to the ground. Towards the end of August will be great mischief done in Bartholomew-fair, by the tumbling down of a booth; with several other strange things too tedious to be here related. [By Jonathan SWIFT, D.D.] Licensed according to order.
